Taco Family Recipe and Commodity Mapping Project Jeffrey Pilcher

Part I. Family Recipe (total of 30 points)

Instructions

Write an essay of 200-400 words describing how your food is prepared. Do not think of this as a typical cookbook recipe, with fixed ingredients, times, and temperatures. Instead, imagine this as the script for a Youtube video about your family. Situate the preparation in social and cultural context (as described in course lectures and readings). Focus on the big picture, who is doing what and what it means within your family culture. Your grade will depend on the use of specific and appropriate course material from the lectures and readings.

Write about your family here…

Part II. Commodity Chain (total of 35 points)

Step 1. Library Research (15 points)

Instructions

Pick one ingredient from your recipe and track its commodity chain. Do a search using the University of Toronto library catalog, as described in the library research tutorial, to find three high-quality, peer-reviewed books and articles that will help you learn about where your food comes from.
